What is a base station in a telecommunications network?

A base station is a critical component in a telecommunications network. A fixed transceiver that acts as the central communication hub for one or more wireless mobile client devices. In the context of cellular networks, it facilitates wireless communication between mobile devices and the core network.

What is a mobile base station?

A mobile base station, also called a base transceiver station (BTS), is a fixed radio transceiver in any mobile communication network or wide area network (WAN). The base station connects mobile devices to the network and routes them to other terminals in the network or to the core network of a mobile operator. Read more Explore Mobile base.

Why are base stations important for modern telecommunications?

In summary, base stations are critical for modern telecommunications as they serve as the link between mobile devices and the extensive network infrastructure that spans the globe. The strategic deployment and ongoing improvement of these stations are essential for maintaining global connectivity.

How do base stations manage network traffic?

Traffic Handling: Base stations manage network traffic by controlling the hand-off process when a mobile device moves from one cell to another. This ensures that calls and data sessions are not dropped during transitions.

Backhaul Connection: Base stations are connected to the core network via backhaul links, which can be wired or wireless.
