How much do solar panels cost in British Columbia?

In British Columbia, the average cost of solar panels can vary depending on several factors. On average, you can expect to pay between $2.50 and $3.50 per watt for a solar panel system installation. For a typical 5 kW system, this would translate to a cost of $12,500 to $17,500.

How much energy does a solar system cost in BC?

Given that the average home in BC uses about 11,000 kWh of electricity per year, a system of this size would cover 109% of the energy costs for a year on an average home. On average, a solar panel system in British Columbia will produce somewhere in the ballpark of 1,000 kWh of energy per kW installed per year.

Can solar panels be installed in British Columbia?

The location of your solar installation in British Columbia can impact your solar panel costs. Areas with more sunlight, such as the southern interior of the province, typically yield better energy production, potentially reducing the time it takes for your solar system to pay for itself.
