New Delhi solar container communication station inverter reform

Overview

The directive requires all inverter manufacturers to integrate their devices with national servers managed by the renewable energy ministry, marking a significant move to fortify energy security amid growing concerns over foreign equipment embedded with undocumented communication modules. Are inverter communication modules a threat to national energy sovereignty?

It added that inverter communication modules that transmit data to servers outside India not only pose risks of unauthorized control but also threaten national energy sovereignty by exposing sensitive power consumption and generation data.

Should solar inverters link directly to national servers?

India's renewable energy ministry has issued draft rules requiring all solar inverters installed under its 30 GW rooftop program to link directly to national servers, aiming to improve grid stability and cybersecurity. Industry groups back the plan but warn of high compliance costs, supply chain constraints, and uneven connectivity.

What are the new guidelines for rooftop solar installations in India?

As India advances rooftop solar installations via the PM Surya Ghar: Muft Bijli Yojana, the Ministry of New and Renewable Energy (MNRE) has introduced draft guidelines. These compel original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) supplying inverters to connect them to national servers managed by the MNRE or a designated entity.

Are inverter communication devices causing grid disruptions?

This decision follows concerns that inverter communication devices were transmitting data to servers located outside India, raising the potential risk of grid disruptions. All such devices must also be linked to software managed by the MNRE or any other designated agency.
